

A DAY AS BEEKEEPERS

An outdoor activity to discover honeybees, exploring how they live, how they make honey, and what beekeeping does.
Let's have a honey snack!

Let's discover the complex and wonderful structure of bee society, their life in the hive, the division of tasks based on age, the collaboration between the various members of the family, and their communication systems.

We observe the queen, the workers, the drones, and the brood through the glass hive.

Let's discover what a beekeeper does, what their role is in rational beekeeping. Let's explore together the equipment they need. Let's open an (empty) hive to discover its interior.

We'll explore how bees live in nature, their enemies, the interdependent relationship between bees and flowers, and why their function is so important to the ecosystem.

Let's taste some honey!
